WAR IN EUROPE VIVIDLY PICTURED

Carl H. McGee, Former Varsity Student, Just Returned From the Trenches in France, Describes Scenes of Action. Lieut Brorein Also Speaks.

At an assembly last Tuesday, Carl H. McGee, one of last year's students, gave a very interesting and instructive lecture on war as it is. Carl has just returned to the United States after spending several months in France in the American ambulance corps. His experience was such a one as has fallen to but few Americans as young as he is. McGee intends to resume his school work at the University of Oklahoma this year, and again enter the service of the United States next year. In his talk he described the trenches, methods of attack, work of the ambulance corps, etc.

Among other things Mr. McGee said that there were three lines of trenches, called the first, second and third. Beyond the first line of trenches men are stationed to listen. These men are fitted with the latest equipment for hearing. So sensitive is it that they can sometimes hear a whisper in the enemy's trenches. These trenches are very irregular and crooked; they vary in depth from 8 to 30 feet, and are connected by smaller trenches. On that part of the Aisne where Mr. McGee was stationed the trenches were in some places only forty yards apart. Any man sticking his head above that trench for longer than a second is committing suicide.

Mr. McGee then went on to describe the English and French method of attacking. The barrage fire is a preliminary to the attack. It lasts from two to six hours. During this fire the shells from the artillery are dropped right over the French and English trenches into the first line of German trenches. At a given time the fire ceases and the attack begins. The Singalese negroes from Africa are the best in the attacks. They use meat axes and long knives, and will stop at nothing.

In his description of the ambulance work, Mr. McGee held the close attention of his listeners, for this is the only branch that Americans have been engaged in as Americans until recently. He said that while the ambulance work is not so dangerous as any other, it is dangerous enough to furnish plenty of excitement. In his division there were only two men killed and five cars smashed in two months. Most of the rescue work is done at night, for the Germans turn their artillery on the ambulances whenever one is seen. At night no lights are used. Running at night without lights over roads that are being continually torn up, furnishes all the excitement one can enjoy, Mr. McGee informed us. The men work in shifts, two days on duty and two days off. When one is killed, he is buried with the same ceremony which marks the burial of a French captain. Another condition which Mr. Mc-

VARSITY OUTPLAYED BY ALBUQUERQUE H. S.

Hill Men Take Little End of Score; Unable to Stop Smaulding, High School's Star Fullback. Mann Starred for Varsity.

In the first scheduled game with the Albuquerque high school, the University went down to defeat to the tune of 19 to 6; the first time the Hill men were ever forced to bow before the youngsters. The high school team showed great strength in both the offensive and defensive play, and easily outclassed the U in speed.

The first reverse of the game came immediately after the first kick-off, when the ball was fumbled by the University and recovered by the Highs almost under the goal-post. Three plays were necessary to put the ball over the mark. After that the Hill men steadied down a little and the score stood seven to nothing in favor of the high school men at the end of the first quarter.

The high school scored a touchdown again in the second quarter, using Smaulding on end runs and line smashes, which the University athletes were absolutely unable to stop. In the third quarter Smaulding made the third touchdown for his school, when he went straight through the line, forty yards, for a goal. The only Varsity points were scored in this period, when Romero blocked Miller's kick and Booker of the Varsity scooped it up and carried it over. In the last quarter, the Varsity played stronger and better football, although neither side was able to score.

The game clearly demonstrated the weakness of the University team, which is composed entirely of new men. The players gave everything they had, but that wasn't near enough, their inexperience and lack of speed contributing to their defeat. The high school showed surprising speed, hard-hitting line men, and superior team work. Smaulding of the A. H. S., was easily the star of the game. Mann and White starred for the Varsity.

Gee mentioned was that nearly all the Germans who were taken prisoners were glad of the fact, and made no attempt to escape. Their chief desire was to have the war ended as soon as possible, so that they could return to their former modes of life.

After McGee's talk, Lieutenant Carl Brorein, of the aviation branch of the U. S. Marines, who was here on a furlough, was called upon for a speech. Brorein was one of the University's best athletes and all round men. He was captain and right end of last year's football team, and one of the debating and oratorical team. Although Mr. McGee's lecture dealt largely upon the horrors of the war, it did not seem to lessen Brorein's eagerness to get to France. Lieutenant Brorein stated that all the men in service were just as eager as he is to go "over there."

IMPROVEMENTS ON THE CAMPUS.

This week saw actual work begun on the plans for beautifying the campus. These plans, worked out by the landscape artist which the University has consulted, have been under consideration for some time, but Monday saw the first spade turned toward their execution. The work now being done is on the strip of University ground which lies on Central avenue.

The present plan is to make a gradual slope or to terrace the ground from the street to the main building, and to plant this in grass. To make this possible, all the trees and shrubbery now on this space will have to be cut. We hate to see the trees go, but we think that the final effect will be far more beautiful than the present one. In other words, the end justifies the means.

Although the Sophomore class was the last class to hold an election of officers, they say that their actions in the near future will prove that they are not the slowest class on the Hill. They met in Rodey Hall last Thursday at noon. A reporter was not present, and all that the Sophs would give out for publication was the result of their election. The same officers who guided them as Freshmen last year were re-elected this year. They are:

Donovan Richardson President
Evalyne Long Vice President
Hugh P. Cooper Secretary-Treasurer

NOTICE TO WAR GARDENERS.

Students who withdrew from the University last spring before the close of the semester are reminded that they were promised such grades as they earned in their courses up to the time of withdrawal, provided that, in case of withdrawal for war gardening, they furnished written proofs that they actually engaged in war gardening from the time of their withdrawal. Many instructors reported courses as incomplete or conditioned until these documents were presented. Many students who withdrew to engage in war gardening have not yet presented any documents to prove that they actually engaged in this work, and are allowing these incompletes and conditions to become failures. Students who belong to this category, must present the documents as required before the end of the present term if they wish to save their credits.

Vespers at Rodey Hall Sunday.

An interesting program was rendered Sunday at Vesper service. Edward Cristy was in charge of the services, and introduced the speaker, Mr. Smith, who has been in charge of the army Y. M. C. A. work at the encampment in Deming. Mr. Smith gave a short and interesting talk on the value of high ideals. Robert Sewel rendered a vocal solo, Professor Seder officiating at the piano.

DR. BOYD RETURNS FROM TOUR OF STATE

President of the University Attended Several Teachers' Institutes in Pecos Valley, Making Addresses at Each.

Dr. David R. Boyd returned Saturday night from an extended trip through the southeastern part of the state, especially the Pecos Valley. This was but one of the numerous trips which Dr. Boyd takes every year in the interests of the University and of state-wide education.

While away, Dr. Boyd attended the county teachers' convention for the new county of Lea, which was held at Lovington. The first part of last week was spent at Artesia and Roswell, working up interest in the University. November 2nd and 3rd, Dr. Boyd attended a county teachers' institute at Portales, and from there came directly to Albuquerque, after an absence of about ten days.

PLANS BEING LAID FOR BASKETBALL.

Several matters of importance were taken up at the meeting of the Athletic Council last Wednesday. Basketball occupied the center of the stage. Negotiations have already been entered into with the Rocky Mountain Conference for basketball games to be played with members of the conference. Dr. Clark stated that the conference recognized our position and was holding our place open for us. The appointment of managers was postponed until the next meeting of the council, Wednesday, Nov. 7.

The Weekly question was threshed over to some extent, but no definite action was taken. The council is awaiting definite facts and figures concerning the profits heretofore made and those to be made before taking further steps.

The Phi Mus are doing their bit by making an ambulance robe. Each girl is knitting a square. They have also bought two Liberty Loan Bonds, one for the chapter and one for the house, besides those owned individually by five girls in the chapter.

We gathered from Don's conversation over the phone in the dining hall one evening last week that he was being invited out to dinner.

Every one at the Phi Mu house was quarantined for about three hours last week, and they all had visions of a six weeks quarantine when Dr. Lovelace turned around from phoning for the health officer and asked them if they had had small pox. He then assured them that it was only chicken pox, and they might give it to whomever they pleased.

Quite a number of University and town girls served at the Red Cross bridge at the Elks' club Saturday afternoon. There is to be a bridge for girls at the Country club next Saturday. Do your bit, girls. Phone Betty Simms to reserve you a table.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1917.

Vesper services were resumed a few weeks ago, but from the last attendance, we take it that evidently more than half the school is not aware of the fact or has forgotten it already. These services begin promptly at 4 p. m. Sundays, and we are promised an interesting talk and good music at each. If more of the University students would turn out we would soon see a crowd of down town people present. When a speaker comes to address the student body of the state university, he expects to have more than a handful of listeners.

BORROWING.

The habit of borrowing books and failing to return them seems to be a general one at this institution. By borrowing, in this case, we mean taking a book wherever it is seen, without the owner's knowledge or consent. The numerous lost notices on the bulletin board show the extent to which this practice is carried on.

The students have no lockers in which to leave their books, and there are times when it is impracticable to carry them with one. Consequently, they are often left for a short time on a table in the library, on the steps outside the main building, or anywhere the student happens to be. Perhaps the pupil forgets to return immediately for his book, and when he does, it is often gone. Sometimes it is found, more often it is not. Besides the money loss, the student is put at a disadvantage in preparing his lessons. He delays in buying a new book right away, in hope that the old one might show up.

Undoubtedly this habit is due more to carelessness and a failure to look at it in the right light, than to deliberate intent. Many a person will pick up a book, use it a while, and leave it where he gets through with it, in this way causing it to be lost. This same person would never think of touching money were it left as books are. The principle is the same. Let's be careful of the other fellow's book.

MUCH OBLIGED.

Mr. Furry, better known among the students of the University as the "Major," was on the hill Saturday in the interests of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company. All of the male students who use tobacco were given a can of Velvet and a little pamphlet containing some of the sentiments of Velvet Joe. Let us hope the generosity of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. will keep the "moochers" quiet for a while.

Didn't George White make a charming little boy last Friday night?

They Can Be Used to Advantage in Making a Serviceable as Well as Dainty Nightdress.

Anyone who desires to make a serviceable as well as a dainty nightgown should not forget the effectiveness of tiny tucks. One model on which this suggestion was carried out was made with a square neck, and was open down the front for a short space; but this opening is really not necessary if one provides a sufficiently large neck. The upper front of the gown was decorated with groups of three tiny tucks arranged to form squares. In each square a daisy was embroidered in white. Anyone who desires a touch of color should substitute colored flowers for the white ones. A casing of the material should be provided around the neck, if one does not intend to open the gown down the front, and a colored ribbon run through it. You can easily see how such a gown would withstand frequent visits to the laundry.

PHI MU MASQUERADE.

The ten young pledges of Phi Mu considerably tempered the winds of their coming initiation when they entertained the active chapter and the alumnae powers that be at a jolly Halloween bal masque at the Woman's Club last Friday evening. The whole affair was one great frolic participated in by the gaily costumed guests.

Imagine a Halloween party without a single ghost! But there was everything else, from the sober Puritan man and maid to heap big Injun chief, and "Little Willie, ain't he cute; he's only six." There were Yama-Yama girls in plenty, cowboys, no-counts, bums and even a certain Turkish cigarette to keep a certain Jimmy from being lonesome. The guessing of make-ups kept the merriment up until the unmasking.

The club rooms were brightly decorated in orange and black crepe paper streamers, shaded lights and cosy corners. At midnight a supper of pumpkin pie, heaped with whipped cream, and coffee was served.

The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Ross, Mrs. Frank Stortz and Mrs. Wylder. Beside the active and alumnae members of the fraternity, the following were present: Messrs. Kellum, Mangum, Barr, Stryker, Hopewell, Sewell, Cristy, Rodey, Bruce, Woodson, Hoover, Richardson, Waite, Costin, Hunt, White, Boldt, Chess, Davis, Lee, Murphy, Hickey, Anderman, Walker, and Given.

HALLOWE'EN DINNER.

On Wednesday evening the Misses Kathleen and Evelyn Long entertained the pledges of Alpha Gamma and a few friends at a Halloween dinner at their home on West Copper avenue. The table was decorated in red roses, the sorority flower, and Halloween favor were given to each guest. Those present were: Clara Bursum, Louise Dadey, Martha Greenleaf, Jimmie Standley, Dorothy Ohmart, Wilma Snyder, Frances Bear, Estelle and Ann Harris, Shirley von Vachenhausen and Anette Weinman.

SIGMA CHI OPEN HOUSE.

The Sigma Chi entertained a number of their friends at the fraternity house Sunday evening. Marshmallows were toasted over the fireplace and light refreshments served by the pledges. Professor Seder rendered several selections upon the piano, after which college songs were sung.

ALPHA GAMMAS TO ENTERTAIN.

Invitations have been issued for the "Hooverite" to be given November 9 at the Woman's Club by the Alpha Gamma Sorority. Everyone is wondering just what a "Hooverite" might be. As it is the first of its kind ever given in Varsity circles, it should be a very enjoyable affair.

A number of Varsity students attended the dance last Tuesday night at the Woman's Club, given by Mrs. Hust in honor of her niece, Miss Donna Hawthorne, of Michigan.

GIRLS ATTENTION.

Do not forget the benefit card party at the Woman's Club next Saturday afternoon, November 10. Come and do your part.

LOCO WEED

Are we mistaken, or have we really heard the howl of a pack of coyotes?

Some how or other it is doggone strange about Jimmie Costin. He never indulges in tobacco of any kind. It's against his religious principles. However, it dogs his footsteps. He took a cigarette—a different brand—to the Phi Mu masquerade. Nope, he just can't dodge 'em.

Jimmie Hoover reports the mysterious disappearance of Oliver. Does anyone know where Oliver is?

The frosh don't seem to be so keen about the wearin' of the green; They've just about decided— To wear no herbage on their heads, To stand for stickers in their beds, The freshmen are near-sighted.

The girls say she is a flirt. She is. Also she gets away with it, and the boys stand attention; and when she says, "Wasn't that just too beau-ootiful?" or when she bubbles over with, "I just had the guh-ran-dest time," she gets them coming and going. 'She's a bear, anyhow.

Hero, lauded and bedecked with glory,
We hand the palm to old Sonorree!

The boys of the dormitory will soon be wearing mourning. Louise Dady is going to move down town.

Have you noticed the path Hoover has worn between his room and the new girls' dorm?

OPEN HOUSE AT THE CRYSTAL.

At last a sign of pep. Somehow or other, that mysterious old quality which used to hang around the campus in other times, seemed to have deserted us this year; but it's back again. Pep picked an appropriate evening for its return to the U. N. M.

On Wednesday, a day designated on the calendar as Hallowe'en, things commenced to happen on the hill. At about seven in the evening a large delegation of students collected on the hill to consult the tiny, little devils, on how to spend the evening. Finally the crew, with Monsieurs Blanco and Lee in the lead, were seen high-stepping it towards the street car. Unfortunately the reporter was unable to learn anything about what happened during the evening, but the gang reported a pleasant and quiet time upon their return, adding that expenses were at the lowest possible minimum and that they were extended a warm and cordial reception every place they visited. The remainder of the activities of the assembly were limited to the hill. Mr. Gruner reported that some low-browed person, with exceedingly little refinement and a poor sense of art, attempted to rearrange his room during his absence.

She appeared to be somewhat excited when he came home that night and he naturally asked the cause.

"The man in the top flat has fallen in love with our maid" she said.

"What of it?" he asked.

"He's been trying to get her to run away and marry him."

"Do you mean the man who practices with the flute every night?"

She said she did; and he made a dive for his pocket.

"Tell the maid," he exclaimed, excitedly, "that I'm a poor man, but I'll give her ten dollars if she'll do it!"
