U. N. M. GYM CLASSES LARGEST IN YEARS

Coach Hutchinson Pleased with Interest in Gymnasium Work This Year—Splendid Material.

It is well worth the while of any upperclassman or of any visitor to the University to visit the gymnasium between the hours of three and four on Monday and Wednesday afternoon. And one visit is sure to be followed by many others during the year. The floor is covered each night with from forty to fifty young men who are rapidly developing into accomplished gymnasts, some of whom promise to make records for themselves. There is a great variety of work which may be seen any afternoon: setting-up exercises, mat work, ground tumbling, bag-punching, weight work, breathing exercises, club swinging, dumb-bell exercises, exercises on the parallel and horizontal bars, the horses, and many other types of physical culture work. Instruction in swimming is also given in the open air pool behind the gymnasium, which is in use almost at all hours of the day. There is an enthusiasm and a vim in the gymnasium work this year as there never has been before, and many of the upperclassmen are beginning to appreciate the value of the work as well as those for whom "gym" is a required subject. More men should take it up, on account of the great good to be derived from systematic exercise. Go over and see the freshest work, and then buy a suit and get out on the floor yourself. You will reap a very substantial benefit in the way of firmer muscles, a more active body and a better general health. Boost it, and tell others about it.

And the girls, too, are for the first time getting their due share of attention in the gymnasium, for the completion of their addition to the gymnasium building they have ample dressing and locker rooms, shower baths and all the fittings necessary for successful work. The girls, though fewer in number, are no less enthusiastic in their gymnasium work than the men, and it is said by competent observers, that some of them are better gymnasts than any of the boys. The swimming class seems to be the most popular branch of the work among the girls, and many of them are already very proficient.

Great credit for the manner in which the work is progressing is due to Director Hutchinson, whose versatility in athletic accomplishments is well known. We believe that Mr. Hutchinson is the only athletic director in the Southwest who is able to coach successfully teams in football, basketball, baseball and track and at the same time conduct classes in gymnasium work for men and women. He is already planning a gymnastic exhibition to be given in the city some time after the holidays exemplifying the work of the department. It goes without saying that this will be a successful undertaking, and that both those who take part and those who merely watch will be benefited and instructed by it.

Y. M. C. A. TO BE LIVE PROPOSITION FOR CITY

Vigorous Campaign for a City Y. M. C. A. Inaugurated at a Mass Meeting Last Tuesday Night

TRAVELING SECRETARY ADDRESSES ASSEMBLY

Gale Seaman, Pacific Coast Secretary of Y. M. C. A. Gives Short Talks.

An aggressive campaign for a city Y. M. C. A. was launched last Thursday night when a mass meeting of the young men of Albuquerque was held in the yards of the Putney wholesale house on Central Avenue. Over three hundred and fifty young men of the city were in attendance; five minute talks were made by a number of prominent citizens, and committees were appointed to arouse local interest in the Santa Fe shops, the University, the High School, the downtown business district and other places where young men may be reached. On November 8 the real work of the Y. M. enthusiasts will commence; territory will be assigned to the representatives of each of the aforementioned institutions, as well as to others who are interested in the work, and the money necessary to the actual construction and equipping of the building will be subscribed. It was at first thought that this campaign would last ten days, but from the enthusiasm shown at last Thursday's meeting, the men who have had the movement in charge feel that two days will be sufficient.

Intense enthusiasm marked the evening's talks. The speakers felt that the Y. M. C. A. building was as good as built—that public sentiment favored it to such an extent that the subscriptions would be easily secured. This feeling also manifested itself in every member of the audience, and there can be no doubt but that, when the actual business of subscribing the money is once started, the same feeling will have communicated itself to the Albuquerque business men as well.

M. E. Hickey and R. E. Putney, the leaders in the movement, had carefully planned beforehand every move that was to be made, with a result that the meeting lasted just 37 minutes. In this they were assisted by W. A. George, superintendent of the Santa Fe shops.

The speakers spoke of the advantages the Y. M. C. A. holds out to the young men, confining their talks, however, to the mental and physical phases of the organization, and especially emphasizing the need of a gymnasium for the city at large since the public night school instituted by the board of education partly occupies the educational field of the Y. M. C. A., although, of course, it would not encroach upon the technical lines in the usual Y. M. C. A. curriculum.

John F. Simms, Robert H. Crews, Marion L. Fox, Henry G. Coors, Jr., A. B. Stroup, E. A. Mann and Senator Isaac Barth were the speakers. M. E. Hickey acted as chairman of the meeting, limiting each speaker to five minutes. Each man drove home his point in a common-sense, practical way that left no doubt as to his sincerity in the minds of the audience.

A Y. M. C. A. button day during the State Fair will be one of the ways of advertising this movement. A committee will meet each person who enters the Fair grounds, and place a Y. M. booster's button on his coat. The promotion committee offers a prize of twenty dollars for the best slogan to be used in this campaign; as many suggestions can be submitted as are desired, provided each is on a separate piece of paper, together with the name and address of the author.

The University men, whether members of the University Y. M. C. A. or not, stand solidly for the city Y. M. C. A., and will do everything they can to make the latter a possibility. It is a good thing; and for that reason, if for no other, the Varsity will back it to a finish.

Seaman Addresses Assembly.

The assembly hour Tuesday was turned over to Gale Seaman, traveling secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of the Pacific coast, who stopped here for a few hours on his way to Chicago, and was persuaded by President Boyd to address the students while here.

Mr. Seaman's talk was entirely impromptu. He traced the growth of the Y. M. C. A. since its inception in 1851 in Boston and Montreal, until it embraces practically every city of importance in the country, with about $100,000,000 worth of property. The student organization, stated Mr. Seaman, started in 1858, in two state universities, Michigan and Virginia, and now 800 colleges and universities in the United States and Canada have Y. M. C. A.'s with only three or four institutions of the size of the University that do not boast an organization.

Mr. Seaman then went on to discuss the three sides of a student's nature which need to be developed, viz: mental, physical and moral. He said while the college takes care of the first two, it leaves the last to shift for itself, with the consequences that many students are turned out of the college with a total lack of appreciation of their debt to society, and who seemed to feel that society owed them a living, and proceeded with the advantages that society had put in their way to prey upon their benefactors.

These and other defects of the student's moral side the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. for the women, were endeavoring to check, and succeeding in quite a degree, as was evidenced by the fact that in all the colleges and universities where they are es-

SUNDAY'S VESPERS WELL ATTENDED

Good Audience Hears Rev. Toothaker Last Sunday—Special Music to Be Feature.

Despite the threatening weather last Sunday, a good crowd of downtown students and friends, as well as those living on the hill, were in attendance at the second vesper service of the year. Vespers promise to be even more of a success this year than last, and it remains to the student body to give its support by attending the services.

Reverend Archie Toothaker of the Congregational church took as the subject of his address "The Perfect Man". He pointed out that while perfection in its fullest sense cannot be attained, yet the constant striving after it on the part of the individual fulfills the mandate of Matthew: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." The consciousness that perfection can never be attained, and the consequent falling to one level, of living in one plane, is a direct departure from this rule; Christ, the master, the one perfect man, is the ideal which all men should hold as their model. Rev. Toothaker emphasized the point that as the struggle for perfection goes on, it becomes more and more easy, until at last it is one of pure pleasure.

Efforts will be made to secure one of the visiting Presbyterian ministers, who will be in town to attend the Presbyterian synod, for next Sunday. Special music will be a feature each week.

Important.

On account of conflicting entertainments, the Y. M.-Y. W. party planned to place in the gymnasium next Friday night, has been postponed for a week. This should, however, afford the entertainment committee an opportunity to prepare a program even better than the one they had for this week.

established they are encouraged and aided by faculty, president, regents and other university or college authorities, he said.

At the conclusion of his short address, Mr. Seaman spent the next few minutes in making the acquaintance of faculty and students under the guidance of Prof. D. C. Worcester, leaving about noon.

Mr. Seaman will return this way from Chicago, and stop in Albuquerque the night of September 30, at which time he will take dinner with the joint university Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. cabinets and Professor Worcester, President Boyd and others of the University.

SPIRIT—NOT.

Last week, in an article on football, the Weekly asked for a little student support for the game; that some of the members of the student body who are not out for the team themselves, be on the side lines during practice, to encourage the players by their presence. Last Thursday morning at an athletic meeting, Coach Hutchinson made the same request; Thursday evening six students, including the writer of this editorial, occupied the bleachers; Friday evening there were eleven; and Monday evening, twelve. These figures will show pretty conclusively just about how much spirit the members of the student body possess.

It should not require an act of Congress or committee armed with clubs to drag a few people out to WATCH practice. It doesn't cost anything, and it is not likely that any skin will be lost in the proceeding. The bleachers are perfectly safe—they won't fall down or catch fire; about the only danger is from a mosquito or two, or a little sarcasm which Hutch is likely to give vent to on occasion. Neither of these have as yet proven fatal.

There are men out on that gridiron night after night, putting the best they have into every play, taking the hard work and the criticism, who know they have about as much chance of making the team as a celluloid dog would have of catching an asbestos cat in Gehenne. These men have spirit, and our hat is off to them. They are the foundation on which a team is built, the sort of men who make a real team possible, and deserve as much, if not more, credit, than the bunch of beef and brawn which is eventually known as the first team. It takes grit and lots of it to keep on going out for a hopeless cause.

Yet there are students here on the hill who are too deeply interested in a game of tennis or pinocle, or the Million Dollar Mystery, or the Red Book, or some other pleasant and homelike diversion, that they cannot spare the time to come out and watch the development of the fighting machine which is to represent the Varsity during the football season this fall. Any wonder the men get discouraged sometimes? Any wonder Hutch loses his temper? Any wonder that Athletics are not more of a feature of the University? Yet there would be a howl that would reach high heaven if the authorities refused financial backing to the teams, or refused to pay a good salary for a coach.

Its up to you, Mr. Student, to get a little pep into this thing, and not leave it all to a handful of men who are already doing more than their share of the work. Get behind and boost. Come out and watch the men practice. Get next to the fact that we have a football team here, and a team that is going to go out and make the University proud of it. Show your spirit!

HOW TO KEEP SANE.

To the Editor:

I have been a Weekly nut for some years. So far as I know, there is no hereditary taint in my ancestry. With the exception mentioned, my general physical and mental condition seems good. Now, I can't afford an expensive specialist, and I should like to know:

1. Can I be cured at home or must I go to an institution?
2. Would a change of climate be beneficial?
3. Will whiskey alleviate or intensify the affliction?
4. Ought I to marry while in this condition?
5. Would my children be likely to inherit the disease?
6. Does it come from a germ?
7. Would electrical treatment do any good—that is, anything milder than electrocution?
8. Can you recommend any helpful books suitable to my case?

GEORGE WALKER.

Reply:

We can only sympathize with you; your case is incurable. You should know better than ever read The Weekly; nobody ever did it and survived. Whiskey might alleviate your condition for a while, but would only tend to make it worse in the end. Don't marry; the disease is not hereditary, and your children would in all likelihood be normal; we are merely giving you this advice for your own good; read Burns on this subject. The only treatment we know of is to read the sports page of the Ladies Home Journal; it may serve as a pacifier.

WHO DID IT?

We (only editors and people with tapeworms are privileged to get promiscuous with that great personal pronoun)—we, we repeat, would like to know the identity of the person, he or she, as the case may be, who left the following hoary witticism in the editorial typewriter. We are willing to fight or to apologize to this person according to how large and husky he or she may be; but in any event, we feel it worth the trouble just to know, for our own satisfaction, who on the hill has such a memory for ancient history as is evidenced by this jeu d'esprit, and in addition has nerve enough to leave it lying around loose where anyone could find it.

"The Weekly editor was discoursing at length upon the merits of his work.

"I am tired of writing of that which others write of," he said. "I want to create an original work, something that no else has ever written about, or ever will write about."

"Well," said Fullerton, "Why not write your own eulogy?"

(Let him up, Doc, he's all out.)

A. A. OFFICERS ELECTED.

At a meeting of the Athletic Association immediately following Mr. Seaman's talk at the assembly period last Thursday, the voting on the nominees for the various association offices left vacant last year occurred. There being but one candidate for each office, the voting was but a mere formality. Joe McCanna was elected president of the association, Miss Katherine Chavez, vice-president; Floyd Lee, secretary, and Ray McCanna, manager of the 1914-15 football team.

SHAMS.

It is not so many years ago that every young lady in the country shunned a healthful appearance as she did the plague and would not be seen eating a square for all the wealth of the fabled El Dorado. Each was ready to paint upon the slightest provocation. Young suitors of the period all bowed to the inevitable; they recognized it as another inexplicable idiosyncrasy of the eternal feminine and each carried a bottle of smelling salts in his hip pocket. Thomas who "made good" were those who could catch 'em before they dropped. Poetry was the strong conversational cud and every girl in America was looking to grab a Prince with damp curls and a roll collar. The girl with five freckles on her nose and a laugh that did you good had no chance then. Those were the good old days; let us hope they will never come again.

We are glad the world as a whole has seen the idocy of such shams and discarded them. Yet, though Old King Sham is dead he has left his descendants. For instance, there are people right here in these small United States who would no more think of using the good Anglo-Saxon word "leg" than they would think of cutting off their ears. I have even heard of a maiden lady in that section of the land where provincialism, due to poor transportation, is most rampant who went so far as to put trousers on the "tablelimbs." Mark Twain claims the cause of this mental epidemic is too much Walter Scott. But let that be as it may.

Now, Behold! for Lo, These Many Moons the tops of the seats in the classroom of a certain professor whose "line" is such as to attract the male students almost exclusively have been decorated with rows of feet, big feet, "prep" feet, feet in English shoes and feet in just plain cow-hides. And, Alas, not even these last were polished. It is not known what motive aside from comfort caused the erection of said hoofs to such a commanding position. It may be that proceeding on the principle that big feet are a sign of brains the students were attempting to conceal their lack of knowledge behind the size of their feet. Anyhow, the Prof, in charge says that for some reason these orderly rows always give him a feeling of peace and quietude, make him think of country churchyards with their little lines of rounded head-stones. The boys themselves swear that not a single pair of feet in the class are malodorous. They say they are very ready to furnish the young lady who has complained against them with signed and dated bath certificates if necessary. They are indignant.

For a limited section of the co-ed roost has complained. It's worst than that; it's a wall and bitter one, too. She says they don't do that way down in—Oh, Al'bama, Georgia—or—what does the locale matter anyhow? Make it Arkansas or Washington for all I care. The main point is, she wants 'em taken down. She feels sure it's "agin" good manners, and it is understood the professor in the case, who has timidly ventured his W. L. Douglas into some of the classiest salons in this country, and so knows what good manners are, will use every means in his power to abate the nuisance. The best wishes of the "Weekly" go with him. Vive le Prof. A bas les feet.

Then, again, there is an old tradition of a young lady who, overhearing a faculty member say that "in Chicago soup is always dipped AWAY from one," promptly changed her system and conformed to Windy City standards. Thank a Kind and Merciful Providence she learned before it was too late! That's what Higher Education is for. The Weekly man heard the remark, too, and he was pretty much up in the air himself for, you see, he had been dipping toward his Jabot. What should he do? He shuddered every time he saw a soup ladle. At last, he effected a compromise and began to dip sideways which, he confesses, he has found rather unsatisfactory because he has to have his trousers cleaned so often. Though, lately he says he has not felt that he was missing anything if he cut out the soup, and since doing so reports himself "in" exactly $2.75.

Let's be real. A sham woman or a make-believe man is the poorest thing God ever made. Don't hide behind pretense. Don't try to impose on the world with a big "front." You can't do it. Don't try to impress others with your importance; if you play a star part in this world you will get the applause, never fear. Be a "good fellow."

LAURENCE F. LEE AND EILEEN M'ILLEN WED

Simple dignity characterized the marriage Wednesday evening of Miss Eileen McMillen and Mr. Laurence F. Lee. The wedding was solemnized at 6 o'clock in the evening by Rev. Hugh A. Cooper at the McMillen home in the Highlands in the presence of a limited number of the relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom. After the ceremony a reception befitting the social prominence of the couple was given, and more than a hundred guests extended their felicitations to the newlyweds.

Mr. Lee is a member of the Tri-Alpha fraternity, graduating from the University in the class of 1910. He received his degree from the Yale law school in 1913, and returned to Albuquerque, where he has built up a lucrative practice.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee left on Santa Fe train No. 8 Wednesday night for Giorietta, and from there went to the Diamond Bar ranch on the upper Pecos, where they will spend their honeymoon.

"I hear the preacher say yestiddy quite a lot about the blessedness of rest after a punson's work is done," observed Mrs. Jonathan Hep as she took her ease this morning, "and w'ile I don't dispute that it may be a afful lot o' blessedness in it, it can't come anywheres near the solid comfort of sittin' down in a mess 'o things to be did—and tellin' 'em to go plumb to thunder."

with the High School. The first team is getting its share of practice in lining up against the second team in scrimmage and is daily working on signals and the simpler plays. Some of the new men are developing so that definite positions can be assigned to them, and several of them are going to give the older men a hard run for their respective positions. Simmons, at quarter, although light, is very speedy and with a great amount of "football sense" will prove a very efficient pilot for the scrubs in their approaching games, and some are predicting that the race for quarter on the Varsity will be a three-cornered one. White, Penniwell and McGary are showing especial strength in

Of the old men not a great deal needs to be said, except that they are getting into the game with the vim that was characteristic of them last year. Sixty men reported to Captain Ballin for initial practice.

Sixty-eight men reported for the first practice at Harvard, nine of whom are veterans of last year's championship eleven. Brickley weighed in at 190, which is as low as when he was in the best of kicking trim last year. The first day's practice consisted of quick starting, walking in a squatting position, falling on the ball, tackling the dummy and medicine ball.

NOTICE.

Dean Worcester, head of the department of psychology and philosophy, offers a course in Experimental Psychology, one hour's credit, from ten to twelve on Saturday. Open to those who are taking or have had psychology.

This is the first course in Experimental Psychology ever offered in the University, and under the capable direction of Professor Worcester, promises to be valuable and interesting. All who can possibly arrange their work to take advantage of this course are urged to do so.

BOWLING TEAM WINS.

The University bowling team, favored by a handicap, won three games from the Royals at the Drummer alleys Tuesday night. This is the second tournament in which the U. N. M. team has been a contestant, the first being lost to Morelli's Colts. The men are rapidly getting into form, and expect to make a much better showing when they meet the Light Company next Friday night.
