

1935

Wake

Maud Uschold

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/nmq>

---

Recommended Citation

Uschold, Maud. "Wake." New Mexico Quarterly 5, 3 (1935). <https://digitalrepository.unm.edu/nmq/vol5/iss3/18>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by the University of New Mexico Press at UNM Digital Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in New Mexico Quarterly by an authorized editor of UNM Digital Repository. For more information, please contact disc@unm.edu.

Wake

By MAUD USCHOLD

Here waits the last of Autumn's bloom
To watch the season go;
An aster nodding by a wall,
Three dahlias in a row
And cosmos blowing in the dusk,
When slaty winds slant down
To make a sport of wrinkled leaves
That scurry through the town.

Rain Is a Lonely Lady

By MAUDE DAVIS CROSNO

Rain is a lonely lady weeping
Throughout this autumn night;
She is a lonely lady seeking
Some past delight.
She stands beside my window weeping;
She feels some deep despair;
Her tears are silver crystals peeping
Through her hair;
Her tears are blurred stars sleeping
Beyond my window there.