Spring brings an exciting first

Kenneth M. Adams

PORTFOLIO OF LITHOGRAPHS

... featuring eight of this noted Southwestern artist's prize-winning lithographs brilliantly reproduced in deep tone off-set on handsome 12" x 16" mats. Included is the movingly beautiful Harvest, the oil of which was awarded New Mexico State Fair's 1949 Grand Prize, and other favorites: The Spring, The Miner, two superb heads—Doña Ascensione and Taos Indian Woman—and three stunning landscapes.

... indeed an "exciting first" and fitting introduction to the New Mexico Artists Series which will continue to present works of outstanding artists from Taos, Santa Fe and other Southwestern art colonies.

SIGNATURE OF THE SUN

Favorite lines from Witter Bynner, Grace Noll Crowell, Alice Corbin Henderson and D. H. Lawrence are among the 270 poems presenting 135 poets in this delightful anthology reflecting the trends and moods of Southwest poetry over the last half century—and complemented by eight penetrating, critical sketches by the collectors and editors, T. M. Pearce and Mabel Major, co-authors of the classic Southwest Heritage.

New Mexico Spills Over Into Texas

the spring Issue of Southwest Review publishes with pride

THE PUEBLO AS A FARM

By JOHN B. JACKSON — Controversial conclusions, perhaps, but the result of careful analysis and vigorously expressed.

THE LITERATURE OF SANTOS

By E. BOYD — Intelligent summaries and evaluations of published material on this old, though now popular, religious art, written by an authority.

CORONADO'S NORTHERN EXPLORATION

By E. DEGOLYER — A professional geologist and scholar of the Spanish period in Southwestern history disagrees with some of Herbert Bolton's statements and conjectures as to Coronado's route on his Quivira expedition.

TRADER AT TAOS, a poem by Elizabeth Coatsworth

These and other essays and short stories readers of the "New Mexico Quarterly" will find of interest and significance.
