NEW MEXICO QUARTERLY THE UNIVERSITY OF NEW MEXICO
BOX 85 ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.

The publication in 1912 of Volume One, Number One of a little magazine, called POETRY was no little event in the history of American culture. For this was the magazine which, as Ford Madox Ford remarked years later, showed editorially and economically how American periodical literature could be raised to the level of the best European cosmopolitanism. This was the magazine which launched the New Poetry Movement single-handed. Over the course of forty years the original aim of the magazine has not changed. Every age has a poetry in which it embodies its ultimate sensitivity, its final appraisals of human experience. For this we shall remember the Greece of Homer, the Italy of Dante, the England of Shakespeare, of Milton, of Keats. The aim of Poetry has always been to find and publish the best poetry, and the best poetry criticism, written in English in our age.

Now coming into its fortieth year we ask, as always, for new subscribers at $5.00 a year. Poetry, 232 East Erie Street, Chicago, Illinois.
